Arrowquip's Cattle Loading Chutes make loading your cattle onto a truck or trailer an easy task. The 12' Loading Ramp features adjustable height that ranges from 12" to 51", allowing it to connect seamlessly with a semi truck or cattle trailer of any height. Fully sheeted sides reduce stress and the likelihood of livestock injury, while the 6" vision slot allows handlers to assist in the loading process. The rib-checked floor plate provides exceptional traction, giving cattle confidence as they transition from chute to trailer. As an essential piece of your handling system, Arrowquip's Cattle Loading Chute are designed for reliable performance time after time.

Arrowquip has been creating best in class livestock equipment since 1988 through an extensive research and development process that is unmatched in the cattle industry. We employ the only team of engineers specifically dedicated to cattle handling, and are constantly improving our equipment to adhere the latest recommendations from key researchers and cattle handling experts.

Every piece of equipment we design is intended to make managing your cattle faster, easier, and safer every step of the way. Why does that matter?

Easier. Working cattle is hard enough. Why make it harder on yourself with equipment that is difficult to use and requires frustrating adjustments? Our equipment is designed with ease of use for the operator in mind, with ergonomic handles and far less adjustments, to make working your cattle easier than ever before. You don't need to be 6' tall to use our equipment, either!

Faster. Too many cattle handling systems are designed without consideration for natural cattle behavior, which results in stubborn cattle that refuse to move effectively. Arrowquip equipment works with animal science to get cattle to move through the handling system without delays, thanks to unique features like our patented 3E System that uses light to draw cattle from tub to chute.

Safer. Good help is hard to find, and getting harder every day. When you're out in the field with your kids, your brother, or your wife, you need equipment you can trust every step of the way. There is no room for error. Our equipment is designed with safety for handlers and cattle in mind, and undergoes extensive testing to ensure the equipment is reliable for your ranch.

From chutes for cattle to custom cattle working systems and pens, Arrowquip has a solution for all your cattle handling needs. For added security, our equipment is backed by industry-leading warranty. Let our generations of ranching experience and knowledge of cattle behavior help you develop a more efficient and profitable operation today, tomorrow, and for years to come.
